

Orapin Singhadej

Dr. Singhadej is the Secretary-General of the WHO Collaborating Centres and Centres of Expertise in Thailand. She is a medical doctor and earned her MPH and Doctor of Public Health at Johns Hopkins University.

Dr. Orapin is a retired Assoc. Prof. of Family Health from Mahidol University where she still acts as a senior advisor to the Dean of the Faculty of Public Health. From 1984 to 1994 Dr. Orapin was the Associate Director of the ASEAN Institute of Health Development at Mahidol University. During her term she worked to develop the international program for Master degree in Primary Health Care Management. She then went on to consult WHO-SEARO as a regional advisor in various projects including Community and Health Service Systems and Safe Motherhood. From 1999 to 2004 Dr. Orapin served as the WHO Representative to Bhutan.