

Carolyn Marsh is the Executive Officer of the Australian College of Health Service Executives Corporate Office. She is responsible for the day to day management of the Corporate Office including business development, marketing, sponsorship and the National Congress. She also heads the production team for the Asia Pacific Journal of Health Management. Prior to working at the College, she held senior positions in a number of New South Wales Area health services and also has a strong background in human resources.