

Mary Cruickshank, PhD, is Professor of Nursing in the School of Health Sciences at Charles Darwin University and Adjunct Professor, School of Health, University of New England, Australia. She is also an Adviser to the Centre of Expertise on Health Services Management, Naresuan University, Thailand. Dr Cruickshank is a peer reviewer for several national and international journals, she has published widely and is a contributing author of a health management text. Her research interests include health care policies and issues, primary health care in developing countries, workforce recruitment and retention, organisational culture, human resource management, leadership and clinical research.